

CERTIFIED FLIGHT INSTRUCTORS

Scott Pomeroy- Pomeroy male rite of passage involves becoming a pilot. Scott grew up flying with family and friends out of the Birchwood airport in Alaska and eventually earned his private airplane rating in 2002. After graduating from the University of Washington he decided to make aviation his profession. Over the years he has worked as a civilian and military helicopter mechanic, flown commercially, given helicopter instruction and now airplane instruction. His goal is to be a crusty old pilot and also within 5 years he wants to complete the RV-7 kit that he bought.

"The answer is always...settling with power."
